I am pleased to present the Occupational Therapy Council of New South Wales annual report for 2016/17.

The Council welcomed advice from the Occupational Therapy Board of Australia that the profession has grown by almost 9% in the reporting year. While overall complaints against NSW registrants remains low, the Council has managed some complex cases relating to the mental health of occupational therapists. That said I am pleased to report that some occupational therapists have exited the Council’s health program after a long period of careful monitoring by the Council. This demonstrates that impaired practitioners can return to work under conditions that keep the public safe.

The Council has continued to foster its working relationship with the National Board during the reporting year by participating in a joint meeting with the Board and participating in its Forum for Education Providers. The Council will continue to work with its stakeholders in order to maintain a high standard of regulation of occupational therapists in NSW.

I wish to thank the staff of the Health Professional Councils Authority for their hard work and support during the last year. I must also thank my fellow Council members for their diligence and robust participation in Council business.

I look forward to the challenges that the next year will bring.

Council Communications

The Occupational Therapy Council website is the Council’s primary communications tool to engage with occupational therapists and the wider community. The Council’s website is being redeveloped and updated and is expected to provide a modern, more interactive and user-friendly platform for the public, practitioners and other visitors.

The website redevelopment involved stakeholder and community consultation that included workshops, focus groups and user testing. The new website will include easy access to the Council’s new online complaint form, with detailed information about the complaint process and will make it easier for visitors to access information about the Council, including policies and publications.

The new website is expected to be launched in August 2017.

Regulatory Committees and Panels
Part 8 of the National Law prescribes the committees and panels that support the Council in undertaking its regulatory activities.

Regulatory committees and panels include:

- Assessment Committee
- Impaired Registrants Panel
- Performance Review Panel

The Occupational Therapy Council appointed four Impaired Registrants Panels during the year.

Impaired Registrants Panel
The Impaired Registrants Panel (IRP) deals with matters where a registered health practitioner has a physical or mental impairment that affects, or is likely to affect their capacity to practise safely.

An IRP consists of two or three people who may or may not be Council members. At least one member must be registered in the same profession as the practitioner who is subject of the complaint and at least one panel member must be a medical practitioner. Panel members are selected from a pool of people who have undergone probity checks and are experienced in working with practitioners who have health problems.
